

North Kildonan Centennial Parade Set

The women are hoping to show their fire-fighting husbands how easy it is to do their job June 17 when they compete in a hose-laying contest during the North Kildonan fire department's centennial parade.

The event, under the auspices of the North Kildonan centennial committee, brings 12 teams into competition plus, what is hoped, more attractive demonstrations from four female teams.

The day's program begins at 11 a.m. with a parade.

Floats, bands, majorettes, modern and old time fire engines, antique cars and children's groups from North Kildonan community clubs will be included.
