

New Bank of Nova Scotia Opens in Springfield Heights

Mr. E. V. Andrusiak presents the first passbook to Timothy Nyhof

The Bank of Nova Scotia, North Kildonan, recently held an Open House that was attended by approximately 500 people.

The manager and staff were busy all afternoon showing people around the new premises.

Throughout the afternoon of the Open House the Pioneer Girls served free coffee and donuts on the Bank's behalf.

Of special interest to the public were the unique displays on hand. Amid the bouquets of flowers and give-away items, there was an Antique Coin Bank display that held the attention of many.

This display is valued as a collectors' item, however it belongs to the Bank and is for show purposes only. The manager believes it will remain at the branch for another three weeks and will then be sent back to their Head Office.

Another display was a replica of our Legislative Buildings built entirely of Leggo Blocks. It took Mrs. de Fehr two years of spare time to complete this magnificent work of art. The building lights up at night and is complete with our famous Golden Boy.

Mrs. H. de Fehr is preparing to place it in a special room in her home along with a replica of the Saskatchewan Legislative Buildings that she is presently busy building.

The first depositor was young Timothy Edward Nyhof of 505 Kingsford avenue.

The Manager and his staff all are residents of the area and Mr. Andrusiak is pleased to say that one of his tellers, Mrs. P. Pauls, speaks the German language fluently.
