

Smooth-Operating Police-Fire Dept. Headed By Capable, Experienced Chief

In the six short years Chris Einfeld has been chief constable in East Kildonan, he has seen his force doubled and on July 1st will have 32 men under him.

Chief Einfeld gained a wealth of experience prior to coming to East Kildonan in 1951, having served with the Winnipeg Police Force, was a special investigator, and for a time a criminal investigator in the United States.

Born in Harlem, Holland, Chief Einfeld first came to this district at the age of four and received his education in Salisbury, Kitchener and Lord Selkirk Schools.

He first entered police work as a constable with the Winnipeg force in 1941.

In 1943 he transferred to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board as a special investigator, and before leaving the organization in 1949 was assistant chief investigator of the prairie region.

Before coming to East Kildonan Chief Einfeld was employed as a detective with a Winnipeg department store and prior to that was a criminal investigator with the attorney-general's office in California.

He worked indirectly with the famed Kefauver crime commission in the San Francisco district and is believed to be the only Canadian to have worked with the state attorney-general's office in California.

From 1943-47 Chief Einfeld conducted over 300 search warrants for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. On a number of cases he had as many as 14 men with him and on one occasion had 20.

CHIEF EIFELD

Although Chief Einfeld openly admits he was opposed to the idea of amalgamating the police and fire departments two years ago, he is all for it now. He feels that they are operating efficiently and the set-up is certainly a saving to the taxpayer.

Although his job takes up most of his waking hours, Chief Einfeld finds time for the Kiwanis Club of East Kildonan where he is vice-president. He also is the Manitoba representative of Chief Constables in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Einfeld have one daughter, Alison, and reside at 31 Linden avenue.

FRAGRANT BEAUTY

The good citizens of Grenfell (have been) sniffing the air appreciatively as they passed by lilac hedges and bushes for which the town is famous. The big clusters of the tiny mauve flowerets are a things of beauty in themselves but it is their heady fragrance that makes them such a universal favorite.—Grenfell (Sask.) Sun.

CHANGING HOLIDAYS

More and more Canadians are losing patience with the curious custom of celebrating Victoria Day on a near Monday. The day has lost all meaning.—Sidney (B.C.) Review.

3-4-10
27
17-7